Ramesh has been hired as an intern under the Internship Program in the Auditing Section of a well-known firm in Mumbai. After working there for a month, Ramesh noticed what behavior is acceptable and what is not. The attitude of the employees appeared to be “laid back.” They knew that their bosses wouldn’t discipline them for overlooking rules of the firm. For example, employees did not turn in “expense accounts” as they did not think it important. One honest employee has rightly said, “Nobody submitted receipts to verify reimbursements.” In fact, when Ramesh tried to turn in his receipts with his expense report, he was told that nobody turned in receipts and that he did not need to do the same. Turning in the receipts was the proper procedure as indicated in the firm’s rules. Also, the employees used the company telephones for personal purpose, which is incidentally prohibited under the firm rules. What is more is that one employee even told Ramesh that he can take what he likes related to pencils, pens, and papers for office and home use.
1. What can Ramesh do about this situation beyond saying “I resign?”
 2. If Ramesh was the boss in the auditing section, how would he go about changing the rules?
