What is a concept according to following passage.

"A concept, like a fact, is an abstraction, not a phenomenon. It takes its meaning from the thought framework within which it is framed. The distinction between fact and concept is that concepts symbolize the empirical relationships and phenomena which are stated by the fact. Thus ... a fact is stated as a relationship between concepts, for each term stands for the phenomena described by the fact. In this sense, then, a fact is a 'logical construct of concepts.' A concept, in turn, is abstracted from many sense impressions, or concepts. The process of conceptualization is one of abstracting and generalizing sense impressions. In this way, it is possible to manipulate, study, organize, and isolate the properties of objects. It is only by thought that such properties can be isolated, and thinking can proceed only by giving names to such properties. Thus conceptualization is essential to thought."

What eroded the Confucian values of loyalty and filial piety according to the following passage?

"Socially, the gentry who dominated Chinese society for centuries began to fade away after the abolition of the civil service examinations in 1905. The traditional social stratification of the four classes-scholar-official, farmer, artisan, and merchant-also crumbled in the face of two rising groups: the compradores and the militarists, who represented the new rich and the new power. Moreover, the influx of the Western ideas of individualism, freedom and equality ... eroded the Confucian precepts of family loyalty, filial piety, the Three Bonds and Five Relations. When the individual rose to assert his status as a member of the state rather than of the family, the kinship society disintegrated. The pace of social change accelerated after the Communist takeover in 1949, and the most dramatic change of all was perhaps the transformation of the peasant from an inert to an activist member of the state."

Moreover, the influx of the Western ideas of individualism, freedom and equality ... eroded the Confucian precepts of family loyalty, filial piety, the Three Bonds and Five Relations. When the individual rose to assert his status as a member of the state rather than of the family, the kinship society disintegrated. The pace of social change accelerated after the Communist takeover in 1949, and the most dramatic change of all was perhaps the transformation of the peasant from an inert to an activist member of the state."*
