The scheme, Development of Women and Children in Rural Areas (DWCRA) launched in 1982-83 (presently called as SHGs), inaugurated an era for systematically organizing women in groups for providing them opportunities of self employment on a sustained basis. Several thousands of rural women from the length and breadth of the country participate in this programme and they have taken up a number of trades under DWCRA banner.

Since entrepreneurship development involves provision of additional channels of funds in the form of working capital and credit, training, management skill etc., DWCRA with an entrepreneurial development of women provides all these inputs by considering women as critical to development. This intervention aims at not only raising the income of rural women of poor households, but also enabling organized participation of groups in the programme of credit, skill training and infrastructure support for self employment in groups who cannot take up economic activities, individually as their own.

Questions :

- a) Discuss the main objective of the scheme.
- b) What should be done to overcome the problem?
