SECTION-C15. Case Study :

The Government of India's policy towards the foreign direct investment has been positive due to shortage of domestic capital. This is evident from various industrial policy resolutions and the declarations issued by the Government from time-to-time. However, foreign investors did not show keen interest in investing in India until 1991 due to the type of economic system of our country. The economic liberalizations of 1991 have given greater fillip to the foreign direct investment.

Question :

In the backdrop of above statement, discuss the various policy measures with regard to FDI announced by the Government since 1991.
