An economy expands and education becomes widespread, more and more family units have two or more earning members. The traditional role of men as the bread winner is diminishing as women enter the workforce. Society is transforming by the expanding ranks of working women. The changing role of women has already affected consumer advertising, politics and other recreational activities.

Many Marketers have leaped into the multibillion dollar “working women” market with mixed results. They are offering everything from working women magazines to seminars on climbing the corporate ladder. Women no longer find their identity and self – esteem in clean, brighter – than bright kitchen and house.

Two – income families share decisions about purchase from banking service to bleach. They want plenty of product information which is equally appealing to men and women. Women aren’t necessarily doing all of the shopping and meal preparation any more. Men, children and especially teenage girls are making choices of food and other products. New products that promise more leisure will also win favor among employed women. Today’s two – income family earn more than the average family but saves a smaller than average proportion of its income. The working couple buy more clothes, cosmetics, transportation, domestic services, child care, restaurant meals and ready – made food.

Q1. With more women working why the traditional advertising concept should be changed?

Q2. In developing new household products how should the marketer target the buying population.
