SECTION-C*15. Case study :

Our monetary system has undergone a sea of change in the past century. If our great grandfathers were to see our lives today, they would not be able to relate to any form of payment. Fiat currency, plastic money, negotiable instruments are all creations of the financial innovation that has taken the world by storm in the past century. Although there is widespread skepticism about the fact that fiat currency has historically always declined to zero in value, it is currently in use all over the world.

However, if critics are to be believed, this innovation might be going too far. There have been some experts that have suggested that the government must adopt a drastic change in the way that we handle our finances. This drastic change is outlawing the use of cash! It may seem bizarre but many countries are already implementing these rules in a big way. If these rules do get implemented, for the first time in monetary history, we may have a society which doesn't use cash! Glimpses of what that would look like are already being seen in some countries. Britain does not accept cash for bus tickets any longer! France has outlawed cash transactions greater than 1000 Euros

In America, possession of even moderately large amounts of money can lead to the money being forfeited.

Discuss the pros and cons of living in a cashless society.
